

Late-Breaking Abstracts

Research

Late-breaking research abstract submission is for abstracts with late-breaking data

These abstracts may be submitted with incomplete Materials / Methods, Results, Discussion, Conclusions and References sections (you may write 'To follow later' in these sections), however, the Introduction and Objectives sections must be complete in order to allow the reviewers to judge the research adequately.

All topics/subtopics are available for late-breaking research abstracts.

In the abstract submission system, choose the relevant topic/subtopic, and then be sure to indicate in the Question section (section 13) that your abstract contains late-breaking research.

All terms and regulations for abstract submission also apply to late-breaking research abstract submissions.
